NEW BOXING CHAMPION

ARNERA
KNOCKS-OUT
SHARKEY

Outclassed In First
Five Rounds.

WATCH AMAZING END
TO FURIOUS BOUT

New York, To-day.

As the result of a smashing knock-out delivered to Jack Sharkey in the sixth round of last night's contest, Primo Carnera, the Italian, is now heavily favoured as champion of the world.

The first Italian to win the boxing crown, Carnera suffered heavy punishment in the first five rounds, and narrowly survived a knock-out in the second round. However, the resources of his magnificent physique enabled him to come out fresh in the sixth round and batter the American to insensibility with terrific smashing blows.

The "Ambling Alp" or the "Mountain Man" as he is derisively termed in the United States, has been an object of ridicule in the eyes of his opponents, and hot controversy has waged over his ability as a boxer. The biggest man to have ever stepped through the ropes of a boxing ring, he has often been defeated, but his tremendous bulk has saved him from the ignominy of a knock-out.

During his chequered career, Carnera has been deported from New York charged with manslaughter (following the fatal end to his bout with Ernie Schaaf) prosecuted by the military authorities in France; and sued for breach of promise by a London waitress in England.

The result of the fight came as a bombshell to the 40,000 who witnessed the bout in sweltering heat in Madison Square Garden.

Sharkey had won the first five rounds and had the fight almost in his pocket when Carnera followed up a ponderous right to the body with a terrific upper-cut which sent the champion reeling to the boards to be counted out for the third time in his career.

The Baer-Schmeling fight attracted a 60,000 gate and was termed the fight of the century. Carnera will now defend his title against Max Baer, the German-American.

Round 1.
Carnera moved majestically from his corner and Sharkey lived in to land left hooks to the head and body. Carnera, however, caught him off his balance and hurled him on to the ropes. Sharkey again charged the giant Italian and landed a left and right to the head. He was then sent to the ropes from a blow, but came back to land a beautiful right to Carnera's chin.

Round 2.
Carnera opened the second round in cautious manner, leading continuously with his long left. This move bothered Sharkey, but he got home a right to the jaw. Primo was sent staggering to the ropes, but his trusty left managed to hold off the champion who attempted to follow to his advantage.

Round 3.
Sharkey opened this round with extreme caution. He trusted to his right arm as he feinted and landed a right to the jaw. Carnera, however, was not to be taken in and landed a right to the jaw. Carnera, however, was not to be taken in and landed a right to the jaw. Carnera, however, was not to be taken in and landed a right to the jaw.

CRISIS THREATENS ON TO SUPPORT EUROPE OR AMERICA? FLEXIBLE OR FIXED CURRENCY? BRITAIN'S ROLE AS MEDIATOR

FAILURE OF CONFERENCE FEARED FROM U.S. ATTITUDE

LONDON, TO-DAY.
IT IS UNDERSTOOD THAT THE UNITED STATES ASSISTANT SECRETARY OF STATE, PROFESSOR RAYMOND Moley, HAS CONVEYED TO MR. RAMSAY MACDONALD A MESSAGE TO THE EFFECT THAT THE UNITED STATES IS NOT PREPARED TO DISCUSS STABILISATION OF CURRENCY WITHOUT INTERNATIONAL EXAMINATION OF THE SITUATION WHICH WOULD PREVENT WIDE SPECULATIONS IN CURRENCY WITHOUT HINDERING ROOSEVELT FROM EXERCISING HIS INFLUENCE.

It is understood that the British policy is of a flexible nature, and that the British will endeavour to form a common ground with Britain associated with it.

Gold Countries Meet.

CONSIDERABLE PROGRESS RECORDED.

London, To-day.

The day-long discussions on currency stabilisation yesterday in a culminated meeting of the representatives of the European gold countries, France, Italy, Belgium, Switzerland and Holland, with Mr. Ramsay MacDonald, Mr. Neville Chamberlain and other members of the British delegation accompanied by their expert economic adviser, Sir Frederick Leith-Ross.

The meeting adjourned at 7 p.m. until to-day.

It is learned in authoritative quarters that considerable progress was made in yesterday's discussions.

The meeting of the gold standard countries started at 5.25 p.m. and adjourned at 6.45 p.m.

The discussions were centred on the production of a general statement relating to the maintenance of the gold standard and the position of the countries still on that standard. — Reuter.

TO SUPPORT EUROPE OR AMERICA? FLEXIBLE OR FIXED CURRENCY? BRITAIN'S ROLE AS MEDIATOR

Dollar Plump Causes Apprehension.

DEMORALISING EFFECT ON CURRENCY

London, To-day.

The stabilisation of currencies remains the crucial factor at the World Economic Conference. The progress and decisions regarding the problem will provide a week-end forecast with regard to possibilities.

To-day from Britain's chary of antagonising America by identifying herself with the European gold bloc and yet anxious for European stability.

Thus, the Premier, Mr. Ramsay MacDonald, stands as the centre of the monetary see-saw on the one end of which inflationist America is calling for elasticity, while on the other end France is calling for stability.

The preservation of the United States dollar and the gold standard in European gold countries are seemingly irreconcilable objectives, but there is emerging in administrative circles in Washington, according to well-informed correspondents, some apprehension over the downward course of the dollar and its demoralising effect on world monetary relations.

Some are of the opinion that the dangers of the present policy are greatly outweighing its advantages.

There are indications that the authorities may modify their hitherto uncompromising attitude towards all schemes of temporary stabilisation and are prepared to discuss means whereby dollar fluctuations are limited, but this change of opinion does not necessarily imply that President Roosevelt will agree to any immediate currency agreement which will arrest his cherished rise in internal prices.

Developments seem to be dependent upon which end of the see-saw Mr. MacDonald inclines his weight, and in the meantime, the possibility of President Roosevelt consenting to international exchange control in order to curb speculation, is not likely until Britain has indicated whether she intends stabilising provisionally under terms of gold or not.

In any case, the gold country delegations are expected to issue a statement to-day, affirming their intention of mutual support of the maintenance of the gold standard. — Reuter.

DR. DOLFUSS VISITS NAZI STRONGHOLD

Defies Warnings Of Trouble.

A GREAT RECEPTION

VINNA, To-day.

A crowd of 15,000 wildly cheered the Austrian Chancellor, Dr. Dolfuss on his arrival at Innsbruck, the Austrian Nazi stronghold, in defiance of warnings of trouble.

Special precautions were taken to prevent an attempt on his life. Railway passengers and motorists travelling to the city were carefully scrutinised by the police. — Reuter.

LOAN TO AUSTRIA.

London, To-day.

Asked in the House of Commons yesterday whether, in the recent conversations with the Austrian Chancellor, Dr. Dolfuss, the question of making or guaranteeing the new loan was discussed, the Foreign Secretary, Sir John Simon said that in the course of the conversations, reference was made to a loan provided for in the protocol of July, 1932, and the Australian Loan Guarantee Act, which it was hoped to issue at an early date in London and Paris and the other capitals concerned. — British Wireless Service.

RUTLEDGE EXPEDITION UNDETERRED

London, To-day.

General Bruce, Chairman of the committee which has decided to recall the Mount Everest Expedition, stated that the weather had been so bad that there would be little chance of the expedition being successful.

Mr. Baldwin Advises Co-operation.

"FORCE WILL NOT BREAK BOYCOTT"

London, To-day.

Lancashire and India should come together in friendly co-operation and try to make a friendly agreement, advised the Lord President of the Council, Mr. Stanley Baldwin, in a speech at Manchester yesterday, defending the British Government's India proposals.

Referring to tariffs, he said that some of the measures suggested, to which Lancashire people had been asked to give support, were calculated to destroy any possibility of goodwill between Lancashire and India.

He did not believe that the national boycott could be broken by force. — Reuter.

BRITISH LADY GOLFERS WIN.

French Team Beaten 7 To 2.

London, To-day.

The British lady golfers repeated last year's success when they beat the French ladies in the 10th international match yesterday. The scores were: Britain 11, France 5. Last year at St. Germain, near Paris, the British team, under the captaincy of Joyce Wethered, won a close encounter. This year, the British team, captained by Mrs. Wethered, won the match 11 to 5 in the autumn of 1931. — British Wireless Service.

TYPHOON PASSES OVER COLONY

GALE RAGES AT 50 M.P.H.

3.315 Inches Of Rain In 24 Hours.

UNUSUAL TRACKS OF DISTURBANCE

Gusts of over 50 miles an hour were experienced at the Royal Observatory yesterday evening, when the depression or typhoon, passed close to the Colony moving in a North-Easterly direction.

The track of the disturbance is reported as unusual, and it was not at first expected to pass so close to the Colony.

Heavy rains fell throughout the night, 1.67 inches falling between the hours of 7.30 and 10.30 p.m., while 3.315 inches fell during the 24 hours ending at 10.30 this morning.

The weather report issued from the Royal Observatory this morning states, the gale of June 29 and 30 was produced as the result of the low pressure over the China Sea since June 21, and the depression probably commenced to develop near the Philippines on the morning of June 28.

The depression followed a Northerly track and entered the coast to the West of Macao yesterday morning, where, in combination with the low pressure existing over South China, it produced the high winds and rains experienced since yesterday afternoon.

RESTRICTIONS REMOVED

Full Water Supply To-morrow.

In a notice from the Director of Public Works, it is notified that, commencing from to-morrow, a constant supply of water will be given in all districts of Hong Kong and Kowloon.

The depression is situated this morning at about 50 miles North-North-East of Hong Kong, moving in a North-Easterly direction at 10 m.p.h. (Continued on Page 12.)

Taiipo Road Landslide.

A small landslide occurred on the Taiipo Road near the Kowloon Waterworks last night at 10 p.m. Work in clearing the road was carried out immediately on the report from the Taiipo Railway Station and the road is now clear for traffic.

Weather Forecast: Cloudy, squally with rain and moderate South-West winds; in the weather forecast issued by the Royal Observatory this morning.

The WOMAN'S Page

Woman's Beauty Depends On This.

The first necessity for a clear complexion and bright eyes is a pure blood stream. This is impossible to obtain if you are constipated—even in the slightest degree. In nearly every person there is always a slight accumulation of waste matter going on which needs to be eliminated periodically.

For this purpose many people take the occasional dose of Pinkettes. This gentle but efficacious laxative cleanses the whole of the food tract, tones up the intestines and stomach, prevents the blood being contaminated by waste matter. Pinkettes make you feel happier too and that is reflected in bright eyes and a smiling face. For health and beauty take the occasional cleansing dose of Pinkettes. All chemists can supply you.

Colourful Wool Trimmings

Bright Collars And Cuffs Form Pretty Finish.

A collar and cuffs crocheted in coloured wools form an excellent finished to a tweed dress and are made quickly.

Choose wools in not fewer than three shades of the same colour and, for a simple collar, work two rows in the lightest shade, in treble crochet, almost the length the collar is to be when finished.

Follow with one row each in the remaining colours, and then crochet along both ends and the bottom of the strip with wool matching the last row, or a darker shade.

Stitch a band of muslin at the top of the strip, to turn inside the dress, and press under a cloth.

The cuffs are made in the same manner. Wool modesty vests also look well with sports suits, variegated wool being used for these.

A collarless dress, with vest and cuffs in this wool, looks particularly smart.

STYLISH STREET WEAR

Smart Accessories For New Paris Mode.

An extremely smart costume, which is very much in favour with the younger Parisian woman, is the Bruyere suit of black knitted wool.

This suit is made with a belted jacket, somewhat reminiscent of the old Norfolk jacket, with two overlapping pockets on each side of the front, each fastened with a large black button. There are also three similar buttons closing the front of the coat which is without revers.

The skirt is a plain wrap-over. The distinguishing feature of the costume is the high button-on collar of white linen, and the wide flaring cuffs of the same materials. There is a sort of turtle neck effect in the collar, very becoming to the young woman, but rather difficult for older women.

The costume is worn with one of the new pointed high hats that are just beginning to be seen here in Paris. White doeskin gloves and perforated leather oxford completed the costume.

NEW SWAGGER COAT STYLES.

Fitted Model For Matrons.

Although swagger coats frequently accompany dresses, the older woman frequently chooses a fitted model, made with certain soft details. Paton shows a model typical of this sort of thing.

This coat is of black wool crepe, made with the fitted-line that is more becoming often times to the mature figure than the loose box line, popular just now with the younger group.

With this coat there is a tie-on cape, pointed in a V-line at the back and reaching almost to the waist, and tied in front with a huge plaid taffeta bow scarf. This scarf, as a matter of fact, gives a very young air to the coat and makes it a popular choice with women of every age.

KNEE-LONG SCARFS FOR EVENING.

Flowered Note In Party Dresses.

Paris.

Long wide scarfs—reminiscent of the old-fashioned stole—are a new note in evening fashions. They are designed of several thicknesses of silk organza and are long enough to hang over the shoulders and fall almost to the knees. Made in a colour matching some accessory of the frock they furnish a note of coquetry which is new to the modern mode.

Flowers sound a springtime note on many of the newest party frocks. Roses, poppies and sweet peas trail over shoulder-lines, accent waist-lines or are thrust into the décolletage of a number of smart gowns. Most of the flowers contrast in colour with the frocks they ornament, although a number of models blend two shades of the same colour.

Crepes are the favourite evening fabric of the moment, while many satins and laces also are seen. Splashing the palette of black, brown, red and white, which has been seen all winter, are new and vivid tones such as cyclamen mauve, cyclamen pink, canary yellow and water green.

A cyclamen pink crepe frock designed with a natural waistline and simple bodice is trimmed by three big red roses thrust into the bodice.

A black taffeta evening gown has one short sleeve banded with orange velvet blossoms, and a pale green crepe frock has a garland of flowers of the same fabric trailing from left shoulder to right waist.

FORESEEING AND AVERTING A SQUEEZE

The squeeze play, whereby one or both opponents are forced to give up otherwise winning cards by the inexorable working of the time factor, can frequently be defeated if the defending players realize in time that a squeeze situation is likely to develop, and take prompt, if daring, steps to avert that situation. In fact, most hands which eventually develop the squeeze in the early stages present to the defending players, fully awake to the defensive potentialities of their cards, a chance for successful defence.

An illustration of the manner in which a squeeze was averted is given in the hand below, played in a Duplicate game in Little Rock, Ark. The defending player who realized the danger that impended, but the one chance for successful defense, was Mrs. Clarence Pfeiffer, who sat East.

The Bidding:
South West North East
1S 2D 1C Pass
4S 2D 3S Pass
4S Pass Pass Pass

The bidding followed natural and normal lines. When North bid three spades, he elected to give at once not only the full raises his hand held, but an optional raise as well. This slight overbid would, however, be actually made by most good players, particularly when not vulnerable.

Against the contract of four spades, West, unwilling to lead from his diamond tenace, elected to open the 6 of clubs. The Knave was played from Dummy, and East won with the King, and then took stock on the situation and the defensive possibilities of the cards. It was apparent that a return of her partner's bid suit could accomplish nothing constructive, but would merely establish, without effort, the King in the Dummy, and thus possibly afford a discard, if South, as was possible, held a singleton in the suit. West's opening lead might conceivably have been a singleton, but more probably a doubleton. Hence, the return of a club could accomplish nothing, as East had no prospect of again being in the lead until the trumps were drawn, and, in any event, East would then have another club trick.

There then remained the possibility of a heart lead. Ordinarily, holding J x, this would be an undesirable lead, but desperate situations require daring treatment, and East, foreseeing the extreme

LORD BIRKENHEAD'S LIFE STORY.

His Merciless Satire Recalled.
ONE OF THE OLD SCHOOL.

London.
Memories of the late Lord Birkenhead (the redoubtable "F. E. Smith" of former days) are revived by the enthralling book on his life by the present Lord Birkenhead which has just been published.

In the last decade death has gradually taken toll of the old school of politicians of the Grand Parliamentary type, with their distinguished bearing and notable powers of oratory, and in their place more and more one sees in Parliament the more matter of fact representatives of business and industrial life.

In the House of Commons only Mr. Lloyd George, Sir Austen Chamberlain, Mr. Churchill, Sir Herbert Samuel, and three or four others remain as members of the Old Guard. In the Upper House famous names in politics are perpetuated by hereditary succession, but all the same it is richer in statements of mature experience than the Lower House. Lord Salisbury, Lord Burnham, Lord Reading, Lord Buxton, are among the veterans who still figure in debate.

Lord Birkenhead will be remembered in history as perhaps the most brilliant politician who ever achieved fame in both Houses of Parliament. In merciless satire he was unequalled and his crushing retorts made opponents fear to interrupt him.

An amusing example of this is quoted in the story of his life. When addressing a political meeting he was persistently interrupted by a heckler with the question "Who is going to tax my food?" Finally he turned on the interrupter and effectively silenced him with the withering retort, "I have never heard of any proposal by tariff reformers to tax thistles."—Reuter.

probability that in order to defeat the contract a possible third-round heart trick must be established in her partner's hand, boldly led the heart Knave. This trick was won with the Ace in Dummy, and the Queen of spades led and finessed. West won with the King, and before leading the Ace of diamonds, led another round of hearts, which drove out South's King and permitted him to cash the heart trick when in the lead later with the diamond Ace.

TO-DAY'S POINTER

An appreciation of the time factor in relation to the trick-taking power of a hand, played either in attack or in defense, is essential to successful play. The success or failure of a contract almost always rests upon suit establishment.

AGGRESSION—WHAT IS IT?

Foundation For Sound Disarmament.
THE SOVIET DEFINITION.

One of the foundations upon which a sound Disarmament plan must be built is a reasonable certainty that the World in general—i.e. not merely the nations that are members of the League of Nations, but also nations outside the League, such as Russia and the U.S.A.—will combine at once to defend any nation subjected to actual or threatened aggression.

For this purpose there must be a fairly well-defined and commonly agreed understanding as to what constitutes an aggressor.

Several times the League has attempted to solve this question—but so far without much success. In February last the Soviet Government prepared a strict definition, and sent this for consideration to the Security Sub-Committee, who examined it with great care, and subject to a few amendments in detail accepted the essential points of the Russian text.

The aggressor, according to this definition, is the nation that first does any one of five things, (1) declares War, (2) invades territory, (3) attacks territory or vessels or aircraft, (4) opens a naval blockade, or (5) aids and abets invading bands. It is likewise laid down that no political, economic or other consideration is to serve as an excuse for aggression as so defined.

Britain's Hesitation.

When the matter came up recently before the General Committee for consideration, Captain Eden, on behalf of the British delegation, agreed that these were just the five points which would be taken into account in determining whether aggression had taken place, but he objected to the rigidity with which the blame was necessarily to be placed upon the nation which first acted in one of these prescribed ways. There might in fact be other circumstances such as provocation, or refusal to submit to peaceful settlement, and yet apparently according to the definition these were not to be weighed at all. Or again, acts of aggression under different categories such as two nations might be taken practically synchronously, and the priority of one over the other would be purely accidental. In short he maintained that this purely chronological determination of the matter, even if it gave definite results, would by no means always assure an equitable one.

There is obviously a very large measure of good sense in the hesitation of the British delegation about this definition; and it is to be hoped that it will be made more elastic before it is finally adopted by the Conference as a whole.

WOMAN'S SPEECH TO LORDS.

13-Hour Address By School-Teacher.
LORD ATKIN ADUISES.

London.

A speech by a woman is a rare occurrence in the House of Lords, but it happened recently. Wearing a long black gown, a white soft collar and tie, and gold rimmed spectacles, a Glasgow school-teacher, addressed the Law Lords for more than 13 hours.

She was appealing against the decision of a Scottish Court in an action which, it appeared, she had started with the object of securing public retraction of alleged slanders, and special damages.

At first she seemed a little nervous and plunged into the middle of things—a course which, as Lord Atkin gently pointed out to her, was not always advisable in a Court which presumably knew nothing about her case.

Once at least her 13 hours' speech was interrupted by an amusing dialogue with Lord Atkin.

She wished to quote a passage from a judgment, when his Lordship intervened.

"Do not read that again," he said, "you have read it twice. We are quite capable of appreciating it if it is read once."

"I did not read the bit I want to read now."

"Not only did you read it before, but I read it out to you myself, pointing out that it was the paragraph most in your favour."

But she was not to be outdone. "Well, I call special attention to these paragraphs," came the reply.—Reuter.

DianeOUTSTANDING FILMS TO BE SHOWN AT THE QUEEN'SLEE TRACY AND LUPE VELEZ REALLY
AMUSE IN "HALF-NAKED TRUTH."Renate Muller Pleases In British Film "Marry Me" At The King's.

Strange as it may seem those two famous comedians, Laurel and Hardy, have not been a big success in full-length features, but in two or three "Reelers," they still continue to rock an audience with laughter. You are assured of being highly amused in their newest "The Laurel and Hardy Murder Case," and the excellence of this all-comedy programme is a sure cure for the Blues.

"Flip The Frog" is a cartoon especially like because of the wizard musical accompaniment. Charlie Chase does not appeal to everyone, but at least one has to confess his comedy is always clean fun, and where the children are to be considered this is a big asset in his favour.

Add to this a colourful burlesque "A Hollywood Premiere" and an up-to-the-minute (they are not always that) News Reel.

Great credit is due to the Management of the Queen's. At an enormous expense they have installed a new system of cooling. It does not strike one as a frigidaire on entering, but throughout the performance there is the same delightful "Coolth," which proves this ingenious idea has reached the perfection stage.

I don't attempt to understand its technical side. All I know is that with the very artistic decorations, in the soft shading of green, patrons, if they would only realize it, will be really rested and cooled far more than swimming in warm water under a boiling sun at the beach. Every man to his taste in this hot weather, but the wise ones know the coolest spots are the dimly lit cool theatres with which we are blessed in this colony.

"Marry Me."

Don't go to "Marry Me" expecting another sure-fire winner like "Sunshine Susie," but Renate Muller pleases as the recordist in a gramophone shop and wins the man she loves by making him jealous. There is a certain amount of sentimentality and tuncful music.

I noticed in the cast the name of Charles Hawtrey. What memories that name conjures. His father was one of the most delightful actors in light comedy. The English stage has ever known. Harry Green, does his best as the matrimonial agent.

The lover is adequately played by Ian Hunter, but George Robey hardly finds his stride in pictures. His certain brand of humour which has pleased the British public for so many years, does not seem to "get over" on the screen.

Renate Muller is natural and charming in the play. You may like it. (King's).

Will Rogers Again.

"Too Busy To Work" brings us the philosopher, Will Rogers, in a role that is almost dramatic. A simple story of a tramp, who after the war, searches the country for the man who has robbed him of wife and child, but who, on finding them, returns good for evil, by assuring his daughter's happiness, without revealing his identity.

Will Rogers is whimsical, dramatic and humorous. Marian Nixon makes a dainty and unaffected heroine, and Dick Powell, who has done big things in films of late, is cast suitably as the hero. Louise Beavers and Constantine Romanoff supply the humour. Slight stuff, but refreshingly unsophisticated. (King's).

Instead of a newspaper columnist, "The Half-Naked Truth" introduces one of those much-needed gentlemen known as a press agent.

Lee Tracy cannot count me among his keen admirers, but I do think he is at his best in this comedy, and we are given more than our share of laughs. Lupe Velez has her best part in months too, Eugene Pallette, Frank Morgan, Shirley Chambers and others make it a most entertaining film, hilarious in spots. Advised. Coming to the Central.

"Zoo In Budapest."

"The Cisco Kid" is a continuation of "Old Arizona," but gives us Warner Baxter in the kind of role that gave him his fame. Edmund Lowe, Nora Lane and Conchita Montenegro make this a film one not to be missed.

Followed by one of the latest releases, "Zoo In Budapest" which has the most perfect camera work of animals ever seen, and a grand cast comprising Gene Raymond and Loretta Young. Shortly to be shown at the King's.

I had the good fortune to see Mae West on the stage in her famous "Diamond Lil." Now Paramount have brought this play to the screen as "She Done Him Wrong." You will see a "howl" of a film that for sheer first-class spiciness "takes the cake."

Lowell Sherman, directs the wondrous Mae West, Cary Grant, Noah Beery, David Landau, and Owen Moore in a film, that is—in its way almost perfect.

Then comes Robert Montgomery, Walter Huston and Madge Evans in an outstanding drama of the submarine service. "Hell Below"—now being shown on Broadway.

Full marks to the Queen's for giving us recent releases that are now a riot in the States. Put it on your "Must See List"—Coming to the Queen's.

"Secrets of the French Police" is a picture with thrills of a gruesome order. The plot concerns itself with the rounding up of a crazy Russian who hypnotises a flower girl, and tries to pass her off as the daughter of the Czar.

The French atmosphere is hardly convincing, but the technical details, lighting, camera work and acting make up for shortcomings. Gwill, (pronounced Jee-les) Andre makes her first appearance. She is lovely but has hardly a chance to shine in her part.

This is left to Gregory Ratoff and Frank Morgan who make this grand melodrama. (Central).

"The Painted Woman."

You might almost think that "The Painted Woman" which was adapted from the novel "Rain," had been produced because the company had lost their Reverend Davidson. As in the original, Somerset Maugham's triumph, "Rain," we have a pretty light O'love wandering along from island to island in the Pacific, cringing from the kisses of sailors, longing for a stalwart defender, and what happens? She meets an ex-marine, now a successful pearl fisherman, who marries her, in order to reform her, which he does by love and kindness, but—murky past stalks in and with it tragedy.

This is just another picture—But redeemed by good all-round wood, comes to this city shortly in a film that made her name famous on the Continent. A release from Ufa—"Congress Dances."

Henry Garai—now the leading man with Janet Gaynor in "Adorable," and Conrad Veidt appeared more to me than the star—Just my fancy but, I was not enamoured with the famous little lady—You may like it. (Central).

I'M TELLING YOU.

What a pity that the King's Theatre Management, (unlike the other theatres) think the programme of advertisements more interesting to its patrons than the cast. In "The Rome Express," (which I consider almost ranks with "Service for Ladies" for best British releases) such names as Frank Vosper who gave a perfect characterization of the French Chief of the Surete, Cedric Hardwicke as the awful philanthropist millionaire, and that Wodehouseian golf bore, Gordon Harker were not considered of sufficient importance to include in the cast.

Frank Vosper is a tall good-looking young man, who besides being London's youngest actor-manager, translates French plays into English in his spare time, and now includes writing dialogue for the films. He was here twice at the old City Hall, and "Q," (Charles Quartermaine) always used to tell me that the lad had the makings of a great character actor.

Cedric Hardwicke was about perfect as "Rain," and "Bishop" (by name but not in nature) could not have been in better hands than the now-famous screen comedian, Gordon Harker.

Ben Lyon and Bebe Daniels will play opposite each other in their next B.I.P. release. They are both enamoured with London and the English people.

Coastance Cummings' engagement to Benn Levy, the playwright, has caused some surprise. She has been holidaying with his parents in Italy.

Joan Crawford will do "Dancing Lady" with Montgomery and Lee Tracy.

Paramount will give a grand cast in "Desire"—Sylvia Sydney, Miriam Hopkins, Frederick March, and George Raft.

Charlie Chaplin having bought a yacht, preparations for his next film are in the distance.

Sad to relate two divorcees, Jack Holt after many years of happy married life has been divorced by wife on grounds of incompatibility—and Sue Carol and Nick Stuart are filling papers, although their baby daughter is not yet a year old.

Doris Kenyon, widow of Milton Sills, will marry a rich man who breeds race horses.

Copying the idea of filming the life of the Prince of Wales through News Reels, Universal will do the same, and title it "The Fighting President" which is the life history of Franklin Delano Roosevelt—one great man.

Sally Blane the pretty sister of Loretta Young will act with John Stuart for Warners, in their British Studio. She is seen everywhere with the young Earl of Warwick.

By the bye no film actress has ever married a titled Englishman.

United Artists will film Dumas' great novel "Monte Cristo." Remember John Gilbert in the old Fox film?

Paramount made such a success of "If I Had a Million," that they are producing a story about a thousand dollar bill from the time it leaves the mint to when it is called in to be destroyed—and are calling it "One Grand."

John Adolf who has directed so many of the George Arliss successes, died very suddenly in Canada at the age of forty-five.

The father of the Marx Bros, aged seventy-two, has died in Hollywood, also Roy Stewart, remembered in the old Movies, Alexander, Kirkland and Anne Harding were together in that yacht disaster off Florida. Rumour has it they are engaged.

John Warburton and Gwill Andre in "Secrets of the French Police"

acting. Peggy Shannon is a lovely little red-headed girl who has been done wrong by the studios. Spencer Tracy, the King of wisecrackers and a grand actor—Irrving Pichel as a disolute lawyer, William Boyd, who is the same always, but admittedly adequate in the role of the villain, and Raul Roulien is good in a "bit" as the native. The background is picturesque, and I quite enjoyed the show. (King's).

"70,000 Witnesses."

"70,000 Witnesses" is a football story that ends with a murder mystery. Here is the excitement, Johnny Mack Brown, the victim races for the goal line, and in the sight of the cheering thousands falls dead. Phillips Holmes, his room-mate is accused. So play, by play, the game is re-enacted and the villain trapped.

Suspense, action, thrills and perfect acting are packed into this film. It is one I highly recommend. It is something different in mysteries, and the solution is reached only after the plot has taken many twists.

Charles Buggles supplies a full quota of humour as the tipsy reporter. Phillips Holmes shines. Dorothy Jordan looks every inch the College belle. David Landau, Kenneth Thompson, Lew Cody and J. Farrell Macdonald are especially fine. See this thrilling play by all means, and the children will love it. (Queen's).

"Fireman Save My Child" with Joe Brown don't let the title mislead you, this is a baseball story, about a famous big-league player with a fireman complex. Plenty of laughs and excitement, and Lillian Bond and Evelyn Knapp help things along. Followed by a first showing of Richard Dix in a story of the American Civil War, entitled "Secret Service." Quite worth seeing. Coming to the Star, Kowloon.

"Lady With A Past."

Constance Bennett as a bookish wallflower terrified by men, and in "Lady with a Past" we have the beautiful one so cast, yet I enjoyed the film immensely.

Ben Lyon almost tucks the picture away as the natural, human, boyish artist stranded in Paris who becomes her gigolo. David Man- ners, a little staid, is handsome as the lover. There is an air of gaiety, endless parties, delightful comedy, gorgeous gowns which guarantee an evening well spent. (Central).

As Others See Her.

Germany boasts many great names in what used to be called mental philosophy. They have pushed psychological studies deep and wide. But they have never seemed to be able to read accurately the international mind. This has been a national defect which has more than once led to enormous political blunders. There is no need to rehearse them. We have one of the biggest under our very eyes to-day. The Hitler Government is surprised and even astounded by the sudden turning of the whole world against Germany. The tolerance and good-will which she had painfully been accumulating for ten years were in one mad month thrown away light-heartedly by the excited Nazis. This seems so inexplicable and perverse to the present rulers of Germany that they sent emissaries abroad, and have resorted to other measures, to seek to placate hostile foreign opinion. The adventures of Herr Rosenberg, the personal envoy of Hitler, in London should have been instructive to the Berlin aspirants, but probably only exasperated and infuriated them the more. Instead of appeasing English sentiment, Dr. Rosenberg infuriated it. If he made a truthful report, it was that the feeling in England against Germany is as bitter and universal as it was even in time of war; for pacifists and all shades of the Labour party, together with the Liberals and the Conservatives, are united in expressions of dislike and distrust of the new German Government. The scenes in the House of Commons, when the Rosenberg mission was being roughly handled, and the subsequent decision of the British Cabinet to make official the statement of Lord Hallahan that the course of Germany is exposing her to a renewal of the "sanctions" laid down in the Treaty of Versailles, must have opened many eyes in Berlin to the truth. What Germany has done is to provoke a moral alignment against her in almost every other nation. How hard it is for even educated and liberal-minded Germans to understand what other peoples think may be inferred from a remarkable letter published in "The Spectator" of London. It was written by Wolf von Dewall, who professes to know England well and who was seeking to explain to the British public the true German attitude. He does not defend all that has occurred. Not a Nazi himself, he writes: "I deeply deplore that events in Germany led to the present development. I fully see the very grave dangers which may result from it, and I admit that much of the criticism presently directed against my country is justified. Yet I complain that Germany is not being fairly treated." Wherein? Why, because foreigners have failed to understand that, though Germany is, as Herr Dewall admits, "delirious," the delirium has been caused by the refusal to revise the Treaty of Versailles. Consequently, the only way to cure her mania is to assure Hitler of "an early and radical revision." If he had that promise, he would "show the real statesmanship of a reasonable and conciliatory Leader." Could anything be more impossible? If there is one thing which Hitler has done, it is absolute refusal to solidify world opinion against revision, so long as the German Government persists in its present temper. If the Nazis are unable to understand how Americans do view their madcap proceedings, they might at least stop to consider the way in which they are regarded by enlightened German-Americans. In the "Open Letter" to President Hindenburg published by Professor Franz Boas of Columbia University, he recounted his long loyalty to Germany. But now, all that is wiped out. He wrote: "I have always with pride called myself a German, but to-day things have happened that make it necessary for me to say that I am ashamed to be a German." Evidently it is going to be necessary for the Hitler regime to do a lot of work in international psychology.

This Hoary Earth.

A study of Hebrew chronological tables convinced Archbishop Ussher that the earth was created in 4004 B.C. Not to be outdone in exactness, a ribald commentator remarked that the time must have been 4 a.m. Now comes a committee of the American National Academy of Sciences with the latest of its annual reports to assure us that the age of the earth is of the order of 2,000 million years. Scientists by no means agree on what they mean by the "age of the earth." The astronomer begins his reckoning when the planets were torn out of the sun and were still globes of gas, and the geologist when the crust hardened. In the one case we deal with cosmological speculation; in the other with the earth's own time records. The geologist may be wrong by two or three million years, but not by ten or a hundred million. As for the astronomer, with his romantic hypothesis of a star that once swept near our sun and flung the planets from it, he is at best a guesser. It was radioactivity that provided the geologist with his clock. Nothing can hasten or retard the disintegration of uranium until it becomes radium and even

World's Oldest Fish

The oldest herring in the world was recently caught in the Firth of Forth. It is thought by experts to be 16 years old.

Probably it is unprecedented for a herring to escape capture and subsequent bloatedness for so long. Herring, according to an authority at the Natural History Museum, are not long-lived fish. He said:

"It would be most unusual, but not impossible, for a herring to live to 16."

"Quite apart from the fishermen's nets its life is fraught with many perils, such as that of being swallowed by bigger fish."

CENTENARIAN FISH

"Carp probably live as long as any fish, and may easily reach 50 or even 100 years, although I think tales of carp 300 years old are exaggerated."

"Pike also reach a great age, as do whales. Carp live longest in captivity when there are no enemies about to kill them."

The age of different species of fish is sometimes calculated by a study of their scales.

If appearance is any criterion of age, the prize for longevity among fish should go to the fishing frog or angler fish. It is called "The Old Man of the Sea" for it has a beard.

Even when their lives are cut short, fish usually make good use of their days of activity. The most prolific fish is the ling, which lays an average of nearly 20,000,000 eggs during the spawning period as against a mere 30,000 by the herring.

The turbot averages 9,000,000 eggs and the cod 5,000,000.

rate of disintegration and we hear the ticking of the centuries. There are other tests, among them the rate at which the waters cut their way through the Grand Canyon, "an abyss of time," as Dr. J. C. Merriam calls it. Given the age of the rocks in which uranium is found, given the rate of radioactive disintegration, and we arrive at the two billion years of the Academy's computation. What a world of difference between the point of view of Ussher and the committee! To bridge the gap between the two is to write the history of science.

(By C. R. W. Nevins.)

When I am asked whether I would prefer to go to Margate or Deal, I reply, very definitely, Margate.

I like the English on holiday bent better than any other race I have ever seen. I am carried away by their zest, by the freedom of each individual holiday-maker and the complete escape from family tyranny.

This may sound paradoxical, but to a man who has spent a great deal of his youth in the watering places of the Continent nothing is more striking than the liberal spirit and the lack of exclusiveness of the English.

How well we know those little groups in France, squatting under an umbrella, dominated by the Maman in black, and a domineeringly trying the children, with the poor father edging to get away into the town to have his cassis and turn a leg, and the still more unfortunate jeune fille sewing in a myopic attitude and straightening her skirts below her knees, and poor Alphonse dismally cycling round and round.

It has always been a fixed idea that the French are a loquacious people, but for a gloomy silence recommend me to a table d'hôte at an ordinary Continental seaside hotel, where the cudgling chewing is only broken by the squeak of a table napkin being tied round a half-bottle of vin rouge. The Belgians are as bad, and the Germans are worse. Yet the English persist in the myth that for freedom and gaiety one must go abroad.

The "Eccentric English"

Actually no place abroad becomes gay or free until the English have been there and broken the spirit of the Maitre, who abandons the town to the mad invaders for whom there are many names in other countries besides Anglo-Saxon angels.

For international feeling it is as well that the Continent has abandoned all hope as regards the English, and has dismissed them as a race of eccentrics outside the pale of ordinary behaviour and custom, a race that pays without question, but whose men are always crazy and whose womenfolk are, without doubt, either old maids or debutantes, who do not know how to dress or when to undress.

I prefer to see the English in England. They seem to be happier and, so much less arrogant and ostentatious in their freedom. I never have the feeling of restriction or gloom which is supposed to exist among the people of this country, though I admit many of the places which are described as holiday resorts are very forbidding in their appearance.

If I could re-plan English seaside resorts the first people I would tackle would be those who arrange the painting contracts. I cannot understand the passion municipalities have for sage-green and maroon. Neither is a good wearing colour or a cheap colour, and the heaviness of their tone is the last thing wanted in a pleasure resort which is already handicapped by an atmosphere which tends to be grey.

Some Colour Suggestions

Farmers inland always paint their agricultural implements in an orange or bright blue to withstand climatic corrosion. Both these colours would be ideal and cheap at the seaside. Or, if this is not considered in good taste, imagine the use of aluminium or coloured aluminium, which is capable of resisting corrosion from sea mist.

Why, cannot the scheme of municipal decoration be based upon the utilitarian colour schemes of an ocean liner, with its whites, which would not get sooty, and vivid vermilion? If railings must be put up, around every conceivable space, why not have the same kind of railings that are used on ships? They would give a nautical air, and would not be reminiscent of a Bloomsbury square, or a municipal garden at Birmingham.

Why should grey asphalt be used? Why not make it pink? Why should not the houses be more vividly painted? They are nearly all painted in any case, and the sea air has much less effect upon colour vivid in key than upon dismal drab stone-colour or maroon. Why cannot the swiftness be less reminiscent of Brixton, and be of vivid stripes of green and white, scarlet and pink, or even orange or Venetian red?

I would like to see a sea-front as kaleidoscopic as the rock that is sold as souvenirs. This would be much more exhilarating and cheaper than the upkeep of ornamental gardens where plants of an unmaritime character struggle to live but to die.

In re-planning English seaside places from an architectural point of view, I would draw my inspiration from ship engineers rather than suburban architects. Why should not hotel lounges be more like those of a liner than a gloomy hargonal hall, with its excrescences of Japanese wicker chairs and Nottingham lace to exclude the light?

I would re-design those strange buildings, found in every seaside place, that are called "Vaults," or "Shades"—those dark holes that must have depressed the secret drinkers of the Victorian era. It is surely myopic attitude and straightening her skirts below her knees, and poor Alphonse dismally cycling round and round.

Both Margate and Bournemouth have proved that modern architects can erect places of recreation that are gay, dry, and airy. Why cannot this be done in other places? If they have not the money, surely it would be better to build shelters again resembling the decks of a liner, and much more in keeping with the nautical surroundings than the dismal affairs that at regular intervals punctuate the grey waste called the promenade. I would have them boarded like a deck, so that they could be used for games or open-air dancing.

In England the climate is supposed to be worse than the Normandy coast or the Bay of Biscay. It is actually, nothing of the kind, but in any case a cruiser is built for all kinds and conditions of weather far more severe than the English. What causes the popularity of travel abroad or of cruising is the escape from the dismal evenings associated with sea-coast towns.

Music And Lights

I would suggest far more food lighting and "hot" music, and as the wireless has now set a standard which has caused the public to demand better serious music than the brass band that plays at intervals, that more towns should follow the example of Hastings.

Possibly because the English are the most cleanly of peoples in their personal habits, we have the most ramshackle bathing facilities in the world. Though I see no reason why English watering places should have the elaborations of Juan les Pins or the Lido; nevertheless I cannot understand why holiday makers should be treated to the Spartan discomforts supplied by our bathing commissioners.

TURKISH NAME CHANGES.

Eliminating Arabic And Persian Words

Istanbul
Mustapha Kemal Pasha's campaign for ridding the Turkish language of all Persian and Arabic words is resulting in many Turkish names having to change their Turkish equivalents. For instance, Husein now calls himself Duran. Mustapha, formerly Gunduz, while Miss Moniz becomes Miss Eren.

The Turkish Government will shortly introduce a bill by which all Turks will be required to have family names. This name change, however, is being carried out so rapidly that confusion frequently results. Only this week a man who had changed his name found himself involved in trouble, because other people in whose company he was had also changed their names and they, too, played did not know who was who.

NO AGREEMENT IN THE NORTH

Uncertain Trend Of Negotiation.

"TABLE THUMPING" BY JAPANESE

Peking, To-day. Official confirmation of the agreement concerning the irregulars in the Luantung region is lacking, and the best information here is that the "agreement" constitutes an over-statement. The general opinion is that the Japanese have done considerable "table thumping" concerning the disposition of General Li Chi-chun's troops, which the Japanese position as virtual victors of the North China hostilities has enabled them to do. However, it is believed that as the result of patient negotiations, the Chinese have agreed to incorporate not all the reinforcements that the Japanese recently sent General Li, but his original band of 3,000 men, which will be stationed along the Peking-Mukden Railway. — Reuter.

FRENCH SUBJECT IN COURT

Entered Colony Without Valid Passport.

SERIOUS VIEW OF CASE TAKEN BY POLICE

Pierre Henri Agostini, claiming to be a French subject, appeared before Mr. Wynne-Jones at the Central Police Court this morning, on a charge of entering the Colony without a valid passport.

Mr. W. P. Thompson, Assistant Director of Criminal Intelligence, who prosecuted, asked for a serious view to be taken of the case. He asked for a term of imprisonment or a heavy fine to be imposed, together with an order for the defendant's expulsion from the Colony.

The defendant, speaking English, produced a letter of identity, which he stated was issued to him at Hanoi, Indo-China in 1930 when he went to Shanghai. He said that he had produced this at the passport office, Hong Kong, six months ago, and although they had refused to accept it, defendant said that they had not told him to get a new one.

Mr. Thompson remarked that the French Consulate had stated that it was not a valid passport.

Mr. Wynne-Jones, examining the paper, remarked that it was only valid for the trip in 1930 to Shanghai.

Came From Canton.

The defendant said that he arrived from Canton 10 days ago. He had worked there for a British firm, but, owing to a disagreement, he had resigned. He intended to return to Canton to take action against the firm.

Mr. Wynne-Jones pointed out that the letter which the defendant possessed would not even take him to Canton. The defendant replied that it had been issued by the Canton Bureau of Public Safety and was valid for one year. The passport he had, said the defendant, had also been given to others whom he knew.

The defendant was remanded until Monday, for enquires to be made at the French Consulate.

MAN WITH RECORD GAOLED.

Possessed Razor Blade.

Cries of "snatching" lead to the arrest of Leung Hung, on the Ping On Wharf yesterday. When searched, the man was found to have a razor blade in his possession.

Charged at the Central Police Court this morning with possession of such an implement, it for an unlawful purpose, it was revealed that the defendant had two previous convictions for theft and had been banished from the Colony.

A sentence of three months' hard labour was imposed.

COOLIE BREAKS AN ARM AGAINST TAXI

So this a Chinese coolie, stepped off the pavement at Wanchai Road yesterday afternoon to collide with a taxi. In an attempt to save himself, he put his arm out against the door of the car, and the door struck his arm.

He was sent to the Government Hospital for treatment.

WHY AMERICAN FARMERS ARE DESPERATE

Reaction From Post-War Land Boom.

LYNCH LAW THREATENED.

Des Moines, Iowa. Behind the uprising of farmers which brought troops and martial law recently into several north-western Iowa counties is a story of the post-war land price boom and 15 years of efforts to slow the high-speed agricultural machine of world war days down to a pace approximating consumption demands.

Farm prices for choice Iowa land soared to $40, $60, and even more per acre after the war. With loose credit and plentiful money, expansion was the watchword and farm owners mortgaged their property as they sought to extend their holdings and to install the latest farm machinery.

On the rush that received impetus from the stock market boom agriculture borrowed on the strength of 4-4 bushel corn and corresponding prices for other commodities.

The reckoning came with the steady drop in prices which forced farmers to pay off these obligations with receipts from corn sold at as low as 5d. a bushel.

Unrest developed. Organised protest came in 1931 when farmers massed to prevent testing of cattle for tuberculosis. National guardsmen were sent to enforce the tests.

"Farm Strike." Next came the "farm strike" aimed directly at low prices. Their mortgages were pending said the farmers and contended that they could not pay because of depleted incomes so they went on to the highways as pickets to prevent movement of commodities to market until prices reached a point that assured cost of production plus a reasonable profit.

Outbreaks of violence followed but the forcible prevention of farmers from selling their products gradually died out after having spread to Nebraska, Minnesota, South Dakota, and other states.

Out of this movement rose the "Farmers Holiday Association," its aim being to withhold products voluntarily from the towns in order to force a rise in prices.

As the mortgage situation became more acute, the Association organised "Councils of Defence" in many countries to work out agreements between creditor and debtor.

In some cases conciliation was effective, but in others foreclosure actions were started. At one place an attorney representing a foreclosing insurance company, was dragged from the court house steps as he offered a bid at a forced sale, and forced to make a higher offer on pain of lynching.

Similar movements by farmers occurred in other parts of the State, forcing frequent postponements of foreclosure sales. Meanwhile unpaid taxes were piling up and county treasurers found it necessary to call sales to collect the delinquent levies. The sales were jammed with tight-lipped farmers who refused to make a single bid. After frequent postponements, the Iowa State Legislature met and postponed delinquent tax sales until December 1, 1933.

Among other legislative moves was the passage of laws declaring a virtual moratorium on mortgage foreclosures in Iowa until March 1, 1935.

The outbreak which led to the recent calling of troops resulted when a Judge began consideration of cases brought by insurance companies and land banks testing the validity of the moratorium laws.irate farmers invaded the court, dragged the judge from his bench and threatened to hang him unless he held the laws constitutional. — Reuter.

BROTHEL KEEPER FINED $1,500.

Conference Adjourned Till October 16.

BRITAIN'S POLICY

London, To-day. The General commission of the Disarmament Conference yesterday passed a motion adjourning the Conference until October 16. Germany alone opposed the motion, although Hungary abstained from voting.

In the House of Commons yesterday, the Foreign Secretary, Sir John Simon, referring to this Conference, said it was the intention of the British Government to facilitate by all means in their power, the resolute prosecution of the work remaining to be done.

He hoped that, as proposed by the President of the Conference, the conversations under his guidance between the interested Powers would take place during the interval.

LIMITING RUBBER PRODUCTION.

Dutch Merchants Arrive In London.

London, To-day. The rubber restriction proposals lend an additional interest to the arrival at Croydon by air, yesterday evening, of the prominent Dutch rubber merchants M. van Leeuwen and M. van Enthoven.

In an interview with Reuter they said that they would stay a few days in London to see the World Economic Conference. The would also visit Dr. Colijn, the Dutch Premier and leader of the Dutch delegation to the Conference, and find out what the Dutch delegates were doing.

In addition, they would have conversations with several people. — Reuter.

To-day's Short Story.

ROBBERY WITHOUT VIOLENCE

The Air Steward's Story
As Told To PETER CHEYNEY

THERE'S something romantic about people who travel by air. Perhaps they're big business men; or people who are in a hurry to get somewhere. I've seen some odd things.

But the strangest was something that happened when I was steward on a Juba-Cape Town hop. I was working privately for some friends of mine who wanted to organise a small flying service, but the project never materialised.

We picked up a couple of passengers at Juba. They interested me. Somehow I'd a vague idea that I'd met the woman before, but I couldn't place her.

Ill-Assorted Couple. I didn't like the man. He was a big, early fellow. He looked like a Dutchman.

She was the prettiest thing I've ever seen in my life. They were an ill-assorted pair. I was curious about them, but I hadn't got to be curious for long, for while we were loading the plane, a special charter pilot who had just flown down from Khartoum nudged me as he indicated them.

"Robbery without violence," he murmured. "Robbery without violence—that's what it is."

"What do you mean?" I asked. He jerked his head in the direction of the pair who were just getting into the aeroplane.

"Those two," he said. "There's a story there. She's the wife of a man who has a job in Khartoum; used to be a good chap before he took to drink. The fellow over there is a man named Sanquam—a Dutchman. He's a nasty bit of work and one of the toughest nuts in the Colony, and he's been trying to make a get-away with that woman for years. She could never make up her mind. I suppose. Anyhow it looks as if she's made it up now!"

In The Lock-up. The pair were booked for Cape Town—the end of the flight. It certainly looked like a runaway. I had opportunities of studying them on the first stage. He was an offensive brute. As for her, well, I think she was the loveliest person I've ever seen in my life, and it made me sick to think that she was considering spending the rest of her life with that fellow.

We arrived at our first stop in the early evening. When we had put the plane to bed I wandered over to the hotel where our passengers

BEER ORDERS BY RADIO.

Receiving Sets Fitted To Delivery Vans.

New York. The President of a local brewery announces that orders for beer will be filled by radio. The brewery, which will be in full production shortly, has a fleet of 100 ten-ton trucks, each equipped with a short-wave radio receiving set similar to those used in police cars.

The brewery will maintain a sending station and radio orders while the trucks are delivering, thus avoiding the necessity of returns to the plant until the truck is exhausted. — Reuter.

VIENNA'S GRAND OLD MAN

Wounded 1859 — Still Going Strong.

Vienna. "Grandpa" Josef Bolanofsky is 89, a master shoemaker, is known as the "Grand Old Man" of the Josefstadt, Vienna, and still makes his own boots.

He was wounded and taken prisoner during the Italian-Austrian War in 1859 and a metal mirror saved his life when it deflected a bullet from his pocket, which was full of cartridges.

"Grandpa" Josef drinks a pint of wine daily, wakes in the morning and sleeps with his windows open. He is a warm admirer of the modern girl—of her dress, her hair, her make-up, her eyes. — Reuter.

S. AFRICAN RECORDS

Cape Town, June 23.
A number of athletic records were broken at the South African amateur athletic championship meeting at Green Point track, when representatives from all the provinces took part.

Most of South Africa's representatives at the Olympic Games retained their titles.

The record times put up were all the more remarkable in view of the fact that the races were run in very hot and sultry weather.

It was so hot on the second day of the meeting that none of the competitors in the ten miles championship could finish.

Thus, there will be no ten miles champion for 1933.

J. R. Viljoen (Transvaal), one of South Africa's representatives at the Olympic Games, broke the existing record for the 120 yd. hurdles, his time being 14-9/10 sec., which is 3/10 better than the previous record.

WIMBLEDON PROGRESS

16 SURVIVORS
IN CONTESTS FOR SINGLES TITLES

Britain's Three Men
Contenders.

SEVEN BRITISH LADIES
SUCCESSFUL

London, To-day.
The Third Round of both the Men's and Women's Singles Championships was completed at Wimbledon yesterday.

America's challenge for the men's event has resulted in four of her entrants reaching the last sixteen. Britain has three, and South Africa, Italy, Japan, France, Germany, Ireland, Czechoslovakia and Australia have one representative each.

In the women's event Britain leads with seven contenders, while America (3), Germany and France (2) and Switzerland and Italy complete the last sixteen.

Bunny Austin, Britain's chief hope in the Men's Singles entered the Fourth Round when he defeated Keith Gledhill, conqueror of Adrian Quist, in straight sets.

Margaret Scriven and Betty Nuthall, who are the leading British players in the Women's Singles, entered the Fourth Round, but Mary Heeley and Freda James, two of the most promising junior players, were both eliminated.

Austin was given a stern struggle by Gledhill in the second set, but his accurate forehand driving and good placements broke through the American's service in the eighteenth game. Gledhill was outclassed in the final set, Austin sweeping through to win at 6-1.

P. D. B. Spence, the South African player now residing in London and who is engaged to Betty Nuthall, renewed an old rivalry with J. V. Kirby and provided a stirring struggle for the crowded gallery. Led throughout by his younger opponent Spence produced his best tennis in the latter stages, when Kirby showed signs of tiring. Experience and court craft eventually won the day after 54 games.

Japanese Win

R. Nunoi and J. Satoh, on whom Japan has pinned her faith in the doubles, won in straight sets, Baron de Kehrling, playing in probably his last match at Wimbledon, and Enrique Maier, the famous Spanish volleyer, were beaten by the swift and accurate Japanese net attack.

Norman Farquharson, the giant killer, produced very disappointing form against Menzel, who won comfortably in straight sets. The South African attempted the net attack that proved so effective against Fred Perry, but was passed time and again by the Czechs brilliantly placed shots. Spence is now the only South African survivor.

Vines Favoured

Ellsworth Vines is becoming a warmer favourite. As in last year's tournament the famous American has shown rapid improvement in each match he has played in. Yesterday he encountered R. Miki, his most formidable opponent to date, and won for the loss of ten games.

The diminutive Japanese played gallantly in the face of a determined champion and his effort in the third set when he pulled up from 5-2 to 5-4 was another example of his match play temperament. The youthful champion was impregnable overhead.

Daniel Penn, the German player, barred from participation in the Davis Cup series and who has entered unofficially, entered the Fourth Round by a decisive win over Don Turnbull, the young Australian doubles player. Extended to 7-5 in the first set Penn smashed his way to victory in the next two sets for the loss of only two games.

Jack Crawford, the Australian Davis Cup captain and second ranking player, in the tournament, is now the only Australian survivor.

Sutter Beats Van Cramm. Clifford Sutter, who is launching his first attack on the Wimbledon crown, swept through Van Cramm to win in straight sets. The German made a plucky effort to win the tide in the third set, but the Swiss was too good for him. Sutter won 6-3, 6-3, 6-2.

Stefan beat W. H. Powell (Britain) 6-2, 6-4, 6-2.

G. P. Hughes (Britain) beat T. Aoki (Japan) 6-2, 6-1, 6-0.

Jiro Satoh (Japan) beat J. Lysaght (Britain) 4-6, 6-3, 6-0, 6-2.

Henri Cochet (France) beat Burwell 2-6, 6-4, 6-3, 5-7, 6-3.

Steadman (New Zealand) beat Condon 9-11, 6-3, 6-2, 5-7, 6-4.

Jack Crawford (Australia) beat Gentien (France) 6-3, 6-4, 8-6.

H. G. N. Lee (S. Africa) beat Vivian McGrath (Australia) 6-4, 6-3, 6-1.

Ellsworth Vines (U.S.A.) beat R. Miki (Japan) 6-2, 6-4, 6-4.

R. Menzel (Czechoslovakia) beat N. Farquharson (S. Africa) 6-3, 6-3, 6-2.

American's powerful forehand driving and rare accuracy overhead took the set and match at 9-7. Von Cramm was the most improved player in Europe last year.

Stoeffen, who beat Sutter as the result of the flick of a coin in the Semi-Final Round of the London Championships, easily overcame W. H. Powell, the former Varsity Blue.

Andre Merin, one of France's most promising players, also fell by the way side. Revealing his best form De Stefani won in straight sets, conceding only seven games.

The Italian's base line attack with an occasional rally to net was executed with meticulous care.

Joan Ridley, who was at her best in 1927, offered no opposition to Betty Nuthall, who showed a slight improvement on her recent displays.

Miss Henrotin, who featured in the final of the women's doubles in the French championships last month, also won her match without the loss of a set. Miss Henrotin is the French No. 2 ranking player.

Mme Mathieu, who dropped a set to Miss Feltham before winning at the conclusion of the 57th game.

Margaret Scriven, winner of the French Championship at Antwerp recently, was given a hard struggle by Miss Lyle. The No. 3 ranking tournament player dropped the first set and was taken to 9-7 in the final set.

Mary Heeley, another British hope, secured but three games against Mrs. Helen Wills-Moody, the holder.

China Wins At Tennis

Lum And Khoo Finish 4-1
Against Filipino Stars

Shanghai, June 25.

An even bigger crowd than on the day before was present yesterday at the Pioneer Field to see the second day's play between the Filipino and Chinese champions.

Leonardo Gavia, the national champion of the Philippines, proved his worth by trimming Gordon Lum by 6-4, 3-6, 6-3, but Leodegario Polintan, who captured the Philippines inter-collegiate pennant, fell a victim to Khoo Hoo-hye, the present holder of the local championship, in straight sets.

Lum Outplayed.

Gordon Lum started off in ragged style, losing his services. In the next game he showed flashes of his real form, which he maintained to win three games in succession. Then Gavia rallied to reduce the lead to 3-2. In the sixth the two had a severe struggle. Each point was hard-fought and the game reached five deuces before the Filipino emerged victorious to put the tally on even terms at three-all.

Lum then lost control as well as confidence, which enabled his rival to win the set by 6-4. Gavia's backhand was remarkably steady and he returned every possible shot.

The Chinese began in real earnest in the second set, but Gavia was still playing his best. He dazzled the crowd when he served three aces in the opening game, which he won at love. Lum took the next. Then Gavia again served a love game, but after that Lum worked steadily ahead to build up a lead of 4-2. He threw away the seventh game and took the next two to make the score one-all.

In the deciding set, the Filipino was at his height again and established a safe lead of 4-1.

Lum was baffled by his opponent's cool and steady play. He hit the net on many occasions and it was his own mistakes rather than his adversary's merits that brought about his downfall by 6-3.

Doubles Tactics.

The doubles match was very interesting. Polintan was the chief victim as Khoo and Lum took him as their target. However, he put up a very good fight and was responsible for many clever shots. Gavia did not have much to do. The winners took the third and deciding set in a very easy manner.

Gavia opened well to win on his service, and the games went in favour of the servers until two-all. Then the two local men forged ahead, crushing Gavia's service in the fifth game and winning the sixth on Lum's turn. Polintan took the next, but afterwards Khoo and Lum dominated the play by good combination and finished at 6-4.

In the second, the Filipinos took an early lead when Polintan won on his service for the third time.

The score was level at two-all and then at three-all before the visitors reeled off the next three games.

Khoo and Lum in the third set outplayed their adversaries and concluded the series by a one-sided margin of six games to one. Polintan tried many high lobs to keep Khoo and Lum on the baseline, but the Chinese replied in like manner and did it successfully with a fatal smash at the net.

at 2-6 and 3-6. In the doubles, the visitors lost by 4-6, 3-1, 6-3.

On Friday, the two Chinese won both singles, so they have won the series by 4-1.

Khoo met Polintan in the opening match yesterday. As with Lum the previous afternoon, he did not experience any difficulty in winning after giving his opponent a two to one lead in the first set. In the second, Polintan won the third, sixth, and eighth games. The loser was entirely at Khoo's mercy, the latter's play being much superior.

LUZ LEADS SENIOR BOWLS SKIPS : FIELD'S 100 PER CENT. RECORD

Hints For The Bowls Novice

HOW TO STAND ON THE MAT

By H. P. WEBBER

THE mats used in this level green game vary in size from 22in. by 14in. (minimum) to 20in. by 12in. (maximum), and thus the bowler has considerable latitude as to the position to assume for the delivery of his bowl.

He must, however, have one foot completely on or over the mat at the time of delivery.

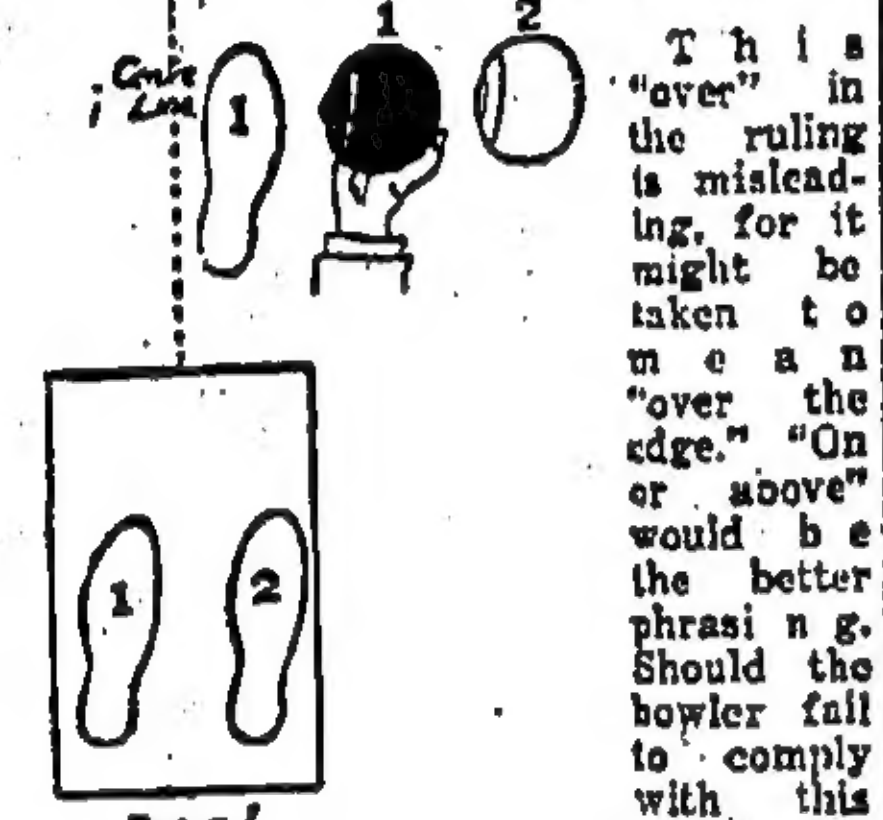

Diagram 1

either backwards or forwards will put you right.

It is understood, of course, that the mat is to be placed on the green with its long axis in line with jack, but there is actually nothing in the rules to prevent a player placing the mat sideways should he desire to gain longitude for freak shots.

I do not recommend such tactics. But intelligent footwork on a conventionally placed mat is quite legitimate.

The player who is thoughtful of his green will take care to vary the position of the mat at each end so that the woods will not be constantly grassed on the same spot.

Remember that should you be the winner of the end, you have the option of laying the mat at the place where the jack lay at the end of the fish of his.

Similarly, by moving from back to front of the mat, or vice versa, the point of delivery is changed.

Again, you may find yourself just that foot out in obtaining correct length, when a change of position head (if that place lies in the centre of the rink) or anywhere in a straight line between that point and a point a yard away from the ditch.

This provision is useful to the bowler who likes short jacks and trailing shots.

FRASER PLAYS WELL FOR K.C.C.

Luz In Fine Form Against Brown.

LAST WEEK'S ENCOUNTERS

(By SHORT HEAD.)

RECREIO SKIP ON FORM

R. F. Luz bowled remarkably well on Saturday, and if he repeats this form it is almost certain that he will beat F. Cullen in the Third Round of the Colony Championship. Against J. C. Brown he was in irresistible form to record the only Recreio win on the three rinks at once, and again he took the "jack" through to convert a losing head into a winning one.

On the tenth end C. G. Silva bowled with rare precision to block Brown so effectively that Luz was able to draw another two to record a 5.

BIGGEST WIN OF SERIES

R. Lapsley's quartette (W. Headley, M. Ferguson and C. Atkinson) recorded the biggest rink win on Saturday. They beat C. E. Marques' four by 30 to 9.

Except for an occasional burst of brilliant play by the Recreio skip the Docks players enjoyed an easy victory. On the twelfth end Marques cleared two woods against him to score a splendid five. On the last head Lapsley bowled well to take the jack close to the ditch for a 4.

JUNIOR PLAYERS IMPRESS

T. Armstrong, who was bought in as No. 1 A. W. Grimmett's rink, and J. F. McGowan, who made his senior debut as No. 2 on R. P. Phillips' rink, fully justified their inclusion. The Civil Service juniors are very promising this year.

BRADBURY'S INSPECTIONS

The Police, at home to Craighengower, had a bad afternoon, winning on only one of the three rinks. The frequent showers of rain affected the run of the play to no small extent. After each downpour the rinks were noticeably slower and the players had much difficulty in reaching the "jack" with their first shot.

As usual, great interest was shown on the rink skipped by B. W. Bradbury and G. C. Moss, and the spectators were treated to a great display. Three down on the third head. Moss registered a six as the result of judicious placing. This high score, however, seemed to be unlucky, for, as they would, the Police four could not increase the score, while Bradbury's rink kept piling up the points.

Bradbury always takes his time, and nothing is too much trouble for him. Numerous inspections of the lay of the woods invariably resulted in a great drawing shot, or an accurate drive. Moss was a little untidy on several occasions, his last wood often just failing to attain its objective.

POLICE RINK WIN

J. Orem and G. Perkins sent down some nice woods, both repeatedly trailing the jack. H. Beer, however, often discounted their fine work with equally good shots, but not often enough to prevent W. E. Holland's four from winning on this rink by 6 shots.

On the remaining rink, U. M. Omar enjoyed a comfortable win by 11 shots, all the members of his quartette (W. T. Brightman, E. Tuck and E. A. Arcull) playing great bowls.

CIVIL SERVANTS' RECOVERY

J. Deakin's rink (S. Randle, S. Alderman and F. J. Jones) made a gallant effort to save their game against Adam Holland's four at the Valley. Led 18-11 at the nineteenth end, they scored a six on the next end to lead 24-11, the Holland rink, however, recorded a two on the last end to snatch a dramatic win. This was the Bowling Green's only triumph.

FRASER'S BRILLIANT WIN

Probably the best bowling of the afternoon was that of Joe Fraser. He was in magnificent form. Aided by Frank Goodwin, he was largely responsible for the only K.C.C. win against Talook Docks. The Docks commenced scoring from the onset, chalking up a lead of 14-0 at the sixth end. At the 12th end they led 18-4. It was then that Fraser played the last five bowls to score 13 on the last five ends to secure a sensational win by 22-20. He played the best bowls of his career.

SOME CLOSE FINISHES

W. S. Drake's quartette (C. L. Farmer, J. Macdonald, and J. Sherriff) made a good recovery against J. M. Jack's four. Led 18-15 at the 12th end, they scored four on the last two ends to force a tie. Led 21-15 at the seventeenth end, and 22-22 at the 20th end, W. S. Drake's quartette provided a surprise by beating J. T. Robinson's four by 24-22. They had two wins in the last round. W. S. Drake's quartette, led by J. M. Jack, scored 14 on the last end to win 24-22. They had two wins in the last round.

PERSONALITIES NO. 1

U. OMAR'S CAREER

5 TIMES INTERPORTER WINS TWO TITLES

Craighengower Title Won In Second Year.

PROMOTER OF GAME AT I.R.C. (By Referee.)

Five times an Interporter, winner of the Colony title on two occasions, and one who has greatly assisted Craighengower to win the premier league four times in the last five years U. M. Omar can be considered the leading bowls personality in the Colony.

Omar first commenced playing in 1921 under the watchful eyes of Messrs. F. Allen, F. Fisher and P. T. Lambie at the Craighengower Cricket Club. B. W. Bradbury and R. F. Luz were also beginners in that year.

It took Omar one year to pick up the game and win the Craighengower Championship. Showing a natural aptitude for the game Omar won the Colony Championship from W. Russell in 1923 and was selected to represent Hong Kong against Shanghai as No. 1 in that year, and again in 1924. Then there was no stopping him. He developed sufficient confidence to persuade the I.R.C. to enter a team in the junior division. In their first year—1924—the Indians enjoyed a fairly successful season, and it came as no surprise in the following year to see the Indians, under the leadership of Omar, conclude the season as runners-up.

Omar, however, was not destined to lead the I.R.C. in the following year. An invitation to play for Craighengower in the senior division was gratefully accepted, and the I.R.C. lost Omar. D. Ramjahn, who had been of great assistance in promoting the game at the Sookunpoo club, also joined Craighengower in the same year.

Bowls then died a natural death at Sookunpoo and it was not until this year that interest was revived.

Omar's Second Final

In his first season with Craighengower Omar reached the Final Round of the Championship for the second time in four years, but he was beaten on that occasion by A. Gourlay. He again secured recognition against Shanghai.

Then for a space of five years Omar contented himself with playing cricket, and his bowls suffered. In 1931, however, he made a brilliant comeback to win the Colony Championship from J. Lasing in the Final Round and regain his place in the Interport side, playing for the first time as skip.

Last year Omar was again selected to represent Hong Kong in Shanghai, and it was due entirely to his brilliance that the weak Colony team recorded a sensational triumph.

In the Championship he met his match in Adam Holland, who eliminated him in the First Round by 21-17.

This year Omar has safely negotiated the First Round. Having beaten H. A. Alves, he is now waiting to play his old colleague, D. Ramjahn.

To Skip Indian Team

Omar is skipping the Indian rink (D. Ramjahn, A. A. Razack, and E. A. Arcull) in the Guiller International Shield competition, which will be played off on Sunday, July 9, on the K.C.C. green, India, who have drawn Wales in the First Round.

MATCHES POSTPONED

The Colony Championship matches between A. Hyde Lay (K.C.C.) and S. Deacon (Electric) and E. C. Fischer (K.C.C.) and A. W. Grimmett (C.S.C.) scheduled for Wednesday, have been postponed.

U. M. OMAR

Round, are favoured to reach the Final Round where they stand a very good chance of beating either England or Portugal.

Omar's career is certainly an arresting one. He has played in five Interports, won the Colony Championship twice, and aided Craighengower to win the premier league on five occasions and the Spey Royal Cup twice.

The following is his impressive record:

INTERPORT
1923—No. 1 in R. Wallace's rink (D. Gow and R. Hall) (Hong Kong won 27-23)
1924—No. 1 in W. Watherspoon's rink (A. S. Muir and J. Clark) (Hong Kong lost 20-14)
1926—No. 1 in W. Watherspoon's rink (R. Lapsley and A. M. Holland) (Hong Kong lost 19-17)
1931—Skipped G. L. Buchanan, J. Lasing and N. Drummond (Hong Kong lost 20-18)
1932—Skipped E. S. Nichol, B. W. Bradbury and L. C. Brown (Hong Kong won 17-16) played in Shanghai, 1 three rinks played.

CHAMPIONSHIP

1923 beat W. Russell in the Final.
1926 lost to A. Gourlay in the Final.
1931 beat J. Lasing in the Final.
He has won the Craighengower championship in 1922, 1926, 1931 and 1932.

Craighengower Favoured For Spey Royal Cup

Holders Should Enter The Final.

CIVIL SERVICE AND POLICE MAY CAUSE UPSET

THE fourth Spey Royal Cup match of the season will be played on the Civil Service green on Sunday when Craighengower, League champions, will meet the Hong Kong Electric in the Second Round.

The following are the teams: Craighengower—G. L. Buchanan, B. W. Bradbury, H. Beer and U. M. Omar (skip).
H. K. Electric—J. Sloan, F. Lunny, L. de Rome and W. B. Musket (skip).

A. F. Paul, A. Tarback, and S. Deacon, who were selected to play for the Electric against Talook Docks and who were forced to stand down owing to circumstances, have been passed over, and the Electric are standing or falling by the team which beat the Docks. Paul is first reserve.

The three other games this season resulted as follows:
Craighengower 41 Yacht Club A
Kowloon Docks 34 Indian R.C. C.
H.K. Electric 23 Talook Docks 12

LEAGUE CARD ABANDONED

The heavy rain has caused the abandonment of the League programme to-morrow and it will be several days after the rain stops before the greens will again be in playing order.

Though there are three good teams up against them I cannot help feeling that Craighengower will establish a new record by winning the trophy for the third time. They have been fortunate in the draw and should encounter little opposition in their path to the Final.

The Recreio, the holders, have two strong teams to overcome before they reach the Final. In the Police they will come up against a strong quartette who would occasion no surprise if they won. In W. Mair, G. C. Moss, W. E. Holland, E. G. Post, A. E. Clark and J. Orem the guardians of the law have good material for their fight.

Should they overcome the Police the Recreio will probably meet the Civil Servants who will also field a formidable four which will probably be S. Randle, J. Hollidge, R. P. Phillips and A. W. Grimmett (skip).
I think the holders will triumph, but there is many a slip between the cup and the lip, and the Civil Servants may make their first big search on the title since 1922.

SEVEN SKIPS ON LUZ'S HEELS

AVERAGES NEARLY TEN SHOTS UP PER MATCH

SEVEN 100 PER CENT. RECORDS

R. F. LUZ, the 1929 Colony champion, is leading the premier league skips' record with five wins in seven matches. Seven other skips have the same number of wins, but Luz's record of 69 shots up gives him pride of place.

W. V. Field, the Craighengower skip, heads the junior division with an unbeaten record. His average is almost 10 shots up per match.

R. Wallace (Talook Docks) is the only senior skip with a 100 per cent. record. W. V. Field, W. H. B. Musket (Electric), Sir Thomas Southorn (Yacht Club), R. R. Davies (Civil Service), A. R. Dallah (Indian R.C.) and C. Lopes (Recreio) are the junior skips with 100 per cent. records. H. Alves (Recreio) is unbeaten with two tied games out of three.

TOURISTS AVOID CHINESE CHOW

Wealthy Travellers
Found "Finnicky."

1933 VOYAGERS "REFINED"

"What are tourists most interested in doing and seeing when they come to Shanghai for the first time?" writes Earl H. Leaf in the Shanghai Evening Post.

Generally speaking, men want to see Shanghai's famous cabarets and women want to visit the shops and buy things—mostly trinkets, linens, laces and dainty unmentionables.

That's the opinion of Mr. H. A. Thompson, and he ought to know, for he is travel representative of the American Express Company in Shanghai and comes in contact with thousands of tourists annually.

"It all depends upon how much time they have here, Mr. Thompson said. "Most of the Dollar ships are here only one day and part of a night so the tourist try to cram as much sightseeing into those brief hours as possible.

The Popular Trip.

"The most popular excursion in Shanghai is the half-day trip along the International, French and Chinese Bunds to the Native City with visits to the Willow Pattern Tea House, Mandarin Gardens, Old Temple, bazaars and motor rides through the French Concession, to the Convent of Siccawei, Lungwha Pagoda and Temple.

"When they have taken that trip with experienced guides they like to wander around and explore by themselves for a while.

"The women want to shop. If they are going to Peiping they usually purchase most of their Chinese antiques and souvenirs there. But most of them are here for only a day and they find many splendid shops in Shanghai where they can get these things.

Embroideries and Laces.

"Shanghai is the place where the women want to buy the embroideries, laces, linens and silken things. Tailors on Yata Road are doing a roaring tourist trade because their service is so quick and their prices so reasonable.

"One of the first things a man wants to see is Shanghai night life. If they are here for a limited time, we map out a programme for them.... so many drinks in this place, move on to the next for another couple of rounds.... until they have made the circuit of all the places. Lots of them want to see the 'dives' as well as the high class cabarets. The American Express Company aims to please and we help them in that ambition, too.

"Some of the more adventurous spirits among the women want to see the 'dives' but are ordinarily satisfied with the more ornate palaces," Thompson says.

Chinese Chow Unpopular.

The majority of tourists, strangely enough, do not want the experience of a Chinese dinner or the Chinese theatre. He advises them to enjoy these forms of entertainment but they do not usually seem much interested, Mr. Thompson said.

Tourists are no longer afraid of Shanghai and they are educated to the fact that a foreigner's life is not in danger without a bodyguard.

"This idea of danger actually existed up until about three years ago but experienced travellers and travel advisors finally overcome the silly notion. Even last year, after the Shanghai incident, travel to Shanghai practically ceased entirely. But the tourist travel is again increasing and next year we expect that the old level of tourist trade will be surpassed," he said.

Intelligent Tourists.

Altogether the class of tourists now travelling is more intelligent and capable than before. There is a marked improvement among the type that travelled previous to the stock market debacle in 1929.

The usual artist's conception of the typical tourist.... an elderly, rather corpulent individual with horn-rimmed glasses, "elephant" hat and Iowa accent in company with this year than ever before.... than it is likely to be again.

The tourists who get the most benefit from their travels are those who come out here deliberately to study the Far East, or the world, and permit experienced persons to assist them in selecting an itinerary and schedule, according to Mr. Thompson.

Finnicky Wealth.

Extremely wealthy people are often very finicky about trivial matters but those travelling on a budget are more amiable and derive more pleasure from their stay here. In most lavish entertainers or...

"Good-Bye Uncle Jock"

Said Vera Fleck, (left) and Lyette Teppaz, as they shook hands with Captain R. G. Latta, and left the Canadian Pacific liner Empress of Britain at Father Point, Quebec, to make an aeroplane dash to Montreal on their way to Chicago where they are contestants in the selection of a "Queen" of the Century Progress Exposition. No matter what the contest results Vera and Lyette will carry memories of a thrilling first voyage home with them. The Empress of Britain, one of the world's fastest liners, broke two records for them, a combination of fast ship, fast plane and fast train gave the two pretty girls the distinction of making the fastest voyages from London and Paris to Chicago ever recorded.

They travelled so fast all the way that Miss Teppaz, who lunched in Paris, Friday, May 18, found herself breakfasting less than six days later in Chicago, May 25. Miss Fleck's record was from breakfast to breakfast. Canadian Pacific officials arranged every detail of their entire journey which, with the exception of two hours and fifty minutes in the air, used the facilities of that grand...

INDIAN HIMALAYAN EXPEDITION.

British Success Fires

SEVERAL ATTEMPTS PLANNED.

Mohamed Ali.

The success of the Houston Expedition and the efforts of various Everest Expeditions to conquer the highest peak in the world have aroused the imagination of some adventure loving Indians.

While information comes from Ahmednabad that an Indian Airman is proposing to fly over the Himalayas, a foot expedition is on its way to conquer the Pindari Glacier.

The Pindari Glacier is in the United Provinces near Nanga Devi, a 22,000 feet high peak of one of the central off shoots of the Himalayas. The Glacier is about 120 miles from Naini Tal, the summer capital of the United Provinces.

The expeditionists, nearly all of whom are University men, some being Biologists and Physicists, aim at studying the conditions there from a scientific point of view.

Specimens of the fauna and flora will be collected and movie photographs will record the progress of the Expedition.

It is hoped that another Expedition will follow next year.—

variably, they come back and thank us for aiding them," he said. The majority of travelers are visiting China for the first time although some parties return several times.

Out For Background.

"If they have more than a few days to spend in China we advise them to get out into the country and get the background. The trip to Hangchow is the most popular short excursion. Peiping and Tientsin lure those who can afford the time and money," he says.

"If they stay here long enough to make friends or if they have friends here, they invariably leave with the impression that Shanghai is the most hospitable city in the world. The people of Shanghai are really get the spirit of China, thus gaining an international reputation as the most amiable and derive more pleasure from their stay here. In most lavish entertainers or...

TYPHOON SHELTER FILLED

No. 6 Signal Hoisted Yesterday.

Reports from the Royal Observatory last night show that the typhoon has passed the Colony, and is proceeding in a North North-Easterly direction towards Canton. Unless the course of the storm is materially altered there is no danger of its return in this direction.

According to meteorological reports, the central depression was situated near Macao in the early part of yesterday afternoon, and was proceeding in a North-Easterly direction towards Canton.

After the first typhoon signal had been hoisted early yesterday afternoon, junk and small Chinese craft made for the typhoon shelter at Causeway Bay, and at sundown the harbour was deserted except for two steamers in Kowloon Bay, and men-o-war anchored in the harbour.

The new Yaumati vehicular ferries experienced some difficulty in berthing at the wharves. The Star ferries continued as usual.

petition, he said, had made a splendid fight.—British Wireless Service.

The expedition, led by Mr. Hugh Rutledge, comprises 14 men. A decision to abandon the assault on the peak was made on June 22. It was anticipated that an attempt would be made in the Autumn.

JUNK CAPSIZES.

Crew Saved By Police Launch.

Lo Chai, steersman of a harbour junk, reported that he was sailing across the harbour yesterday afternoon from Kennedy Town to Yaumati, when a gust of wind capsized the junk.

The crew were saved by Police Launch No. 6, and the waterlogged junk was towed to Yaumati.

TYPHOON PASSES.

The track of the disturbance was unusual, and it was not at first expected to pass so close to the Colony.

The wind reached gale force from the South-West at Gap Rock at 2 p.m. yesterday, and continued until 7 a.m. this morning.

At the Royal Observatory the wind was from the South-South-West with force varying from 3 to 7 Beaufort, with several gusts exceeding 50 miles an hour, the highest of which were 66 miles an hour at 7.10 p.m., and 67 miles an hour at 2.10 a.m.

The Barometer fell to 29.39 at 10 p.m., a fall of 0.13. An increase of 162,000,000 gallons of water in the Island reservoirs was recorded for the 24 hours ending 6 a.m. this morning, while about 30,000,000 gallons gain is recorded for the same period in the mainland impounds.

The total storage in the Colony, is now: Islands, 815,000,000 gallons; mainland, 355,000,000 gallons.

CYCLING FAD HITS HOLLYWOOD.

"Stars" Experience Bumps And Bruises

Hollywood.

Despite bruises, bumps and cuts, a number of the would-be cyclists of the film colony are learning that, to ride a bicycle, one must be able to stay on it.

The bicycling fad numbers among its victims Constance Bennett with bruised legs, Mary Duncan with a black and blue arm and Janet Gaynor with a damaged knee. Jean Harlow ran into a parked car at night but escaped injury.—Reuter.

CRISIS THREATENS ON STABILISATION

The Prime Minister, with the other British representatives also had later conversations with the American representatives, including Professor Raymond Moley, United States Assistant Secretary of State.

The question of limitation of currency fluctuations was also discussed in the drafting sub-committee appointed by the Financial Sub-Commission on the basis of the memorandum submitted by the United Kingdom delegation.—British Wireless Service.
